

Apple Health Eligibility for Individuals from Afghanistan

Special immigrant status and humanitarian parolees

Background

Afghans and their families began arriving in the U.S. in August 2021. These individuals will have one of the following statuses:

- Special Immigrant visa (SIV) program
- Special Immigrant (SI) parolee
- Special Immigrant conditional permanent residents (CPRs)
- Afghan humanitarian parolee

These groups meet the immigration requirements for Apple Health.

Eligibility for Apple Health

Afghan special immigrants and humanitarian parolees may be eligible for Apple Health if they are granted humanitarian parole between July 31, 2021, through September 30, 2023, or are their spouses, children, parents, or legal guardians who are granted parole after September 30, 2023.

Individuals may continue to be eligible for Apple Health even if their parole status has ended if they have an application for adjustment of status pending with USCIS, and they submitted the application prior to the end of their parole status.

Individuals who are no longer eligible for Apple Health may be eligible for other programs, including Refugee Medical Assistance for up to 12 months or,

A qualified health plan (QHP) with financial assistance through Washington Healthplanfinder.
